1. What is a cookie?

Cookies are small text files that are stored on the browser of your computer. They store certain information (e.g., site settings) which your browser may (depending on the lifespan of the cookie) retransmit to us upon your next visit to our Website.

Most browsers automatically accept cookies by default, but you can adjust the preferences in the browser of your computer or device to warn you each time a cookie is being sent, or to block some or all cookies. While you may still use the Regeneron Sites if you reject cookies, your ability to use some areas of the Regeneron Sites may be limited.

A cookie can temporarily store anonymous information about the use and users of a website. Some cookies are necessary, others allow customization and optimization of the content displayed, the collection of user preferences or the monitoring of the audience, website errors and the securing of access.
